The Constitution put the United States on a direct Collision Course with the 7,000-year-old institution of slavery.

Slavery has been part of the human condition for at least 7,000 years of known history. Critics of the Electoral College like to claim the “3/5 Compromise”, which allowed the United States to be formed, counted slaves as only “3/5 of a person for their representation in the Federal government”. That’s a crazy claim to make, because slaves couldn’t vote all – they had NO representation at all!

(In reality, the “3/5 Rule” provided an incentive to each State that FREED their slaves because each Free man was counted as full person, giving that State MORE Representatives in Congress and the same number of added Votes to cast for President!)

The Electoral College elected Lincoln, who’s State Electors received just 39% of their respective State popular votes. Along with a bloody Civil War, it put an END to U.S. slavery.
